SET IN THE HEART OF BIRMINGHAM'S RETAIL AND COMMERCE DISTRICT, MACDONALD BURLINGTON HOTEL OFFERS GUESTS THE FEELING OF LUXURY AND TRADITION THAT YOU WOULD EXPECT FROM A VICTORIAN HOTEL.

WITH OUR FOUR-STAR SERVICE AND RANGE OF 16 FLEXIBLE MEETING AND EVENT ROOMS, MACDONALD BURLINGTON HOTEL IS ONE OF BIRMINGHAM'S LEADING CONFERENCE VENUES, WITH FACILITIES TO SUIT YOUR BUSINESS MEETING REQUIREMENTS WHETHER IT'S A LARGE SCALE CONFERENCE OR A SMALLER EVENT YOU HAVE IN MIND.

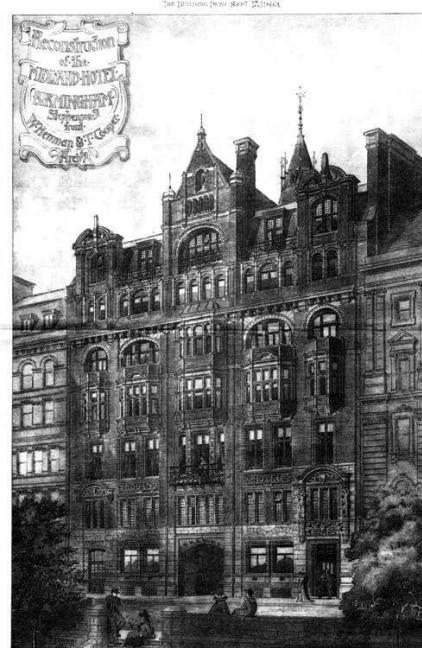

IT IS LOCATED JUST A TWO MINUTE WALK AWAY FROM BIRMINGHAM NEW STREET STATION, 20 MINUTES FROM BIRMINGHAM INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT AND WITHIN EASY WALKING DISTANCE OF BIRMINGHAM'S BUSINESS DISTRICT.

WITH MANY OF IT'S ORIGINAL FEATURES, WE TRULY ARE A HIDDEN GEM IN THE UK'S SECOND CITY.

HISTORY

In 1871 Isaac signed the lease for a new street site and by 1874 the Midland Hotel had been built to serve the original new street station. Initially it was designed to house 50 guests, but Isaac acquired further land in Stevenson street which enabled him to enlarge the hotel to 145 bedrooms.

With its vast columns and sweeping expanse of marble, the Midland Hotel was a sumptuous example of the Palladian style of architecture which was championed by Lord Burlington in the early eighteenth century. It was also completely self-sufficient, using coal-fired steam engines to generate its power supply and drawing all the water it required from its own artesian well.

The hotel, with its sumptuous restaurant and Bar, famed for the real ale it served, attracted a range of dignitaries, guests and celebrities of the time. Rex Harrison and Lily Palmer conducted their romance there and the hotel was often frequented by actors from the Shakespeare memorial theatre including Richard Burton and Peter O'toole. Comedians Laurel and Hardy also visited and Tommy Cooper was said to have loved the real ale of the Back Bar. The then Conservative MP for Wolverhampton south West, Enoch Powell, delivered his now infamous 'rivers of Blood' speech from the hotel in 1968. However, the famous were not just visitors to the hotel. the world-renowned musician and conductor, Mantovani, started his career at the Midland Hotel in 1924 with a quintet group.

In 1994, Hortons undertook a £20m refurbishment of the hotel and associated offices and shops, designed to take the building well into the twenty-first century. during the building work, when some of the new street units were stripped of their floor finishes and plasterwork, the builders found that they had sloping, rather than flat, floors. the theory behind this was that, when they were built in the 1800s by Hortons, the passing horse and carts made it necessary that anything that came in from the road could be easily swept out again. the builders were also amazed to find that the original brick footings supporting the entire hotel were just 15 inches in width.

The upgraded Midland Hotel reopened as the Burlington Hotel in 1996 with the original Victorian facade intact. Designed to attract the increasing numbers of business visitors to the city, the refurbished four star hotel had 112 bedrooms and a 450 seat function room, known as the Horton suite.
